During the next two decades great herds of these longhorn cattle were rounded up and driven north to the railheads in Kansas. Though only worth about a dollar a head in Texas, a single longhorn could sell for about forty dollars in the northeastern markets. Probably the greatest migration of livestock in the history of the world, over six million longhorns made the three-month trek north, and the profit from those cattle revitalized the Texas economy. FIND 10 DIFFERENCES

(... cont'd) Also benefiting greatly from the cattle drives was Fort Worth as it provided a final opportunity for drovers to purchase supplies before venturing into the five hundred miles of unsettled wilderness that extended to Abilene, Kansas. Upon returning, Fort Worth offered the first chance to rest and spend some of their hard-earned pay.

The Old West can be revisited and come to life before your eyes during the world's only twice-daily cattle drive presented by the Fort Worth Herd. Real Texas cowhands drive a herd of Texas longhorns down East Exchange Avenue in the Stockyards National Historic District every day at 11:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. (except during inclement weather). Every detail of the cattle drive—from the saddles and chaps to the boots and hats - is authentic and historically true.
