National Coffee Day

is a holiday in the United States that falls on September 29. Coffee is one of the country's favorite drinks, and many people can't start their day without drinking a cup.

Evidence shows that the first coffee was enjoyed in 15th century Yemen, where monks from the Sufi monasteries in Mokha first roasted beans and brewed coffee. Traders then brought the seed to Ethiopia, so that they could cultivate and farm coffee beans.

Coffee made its way to Europe by way of Venice in 1615, where it was deemed to be 'Satan' drink' due to its bitter taste, but eventually, the drink got the approval of the Pope himself, and the first coffee house opened in Venice in 1645.

The drink became popular in America in 1773 when Americans revolted against the British tea tax and replaced tea with coffee as their preferred drink. James Folger was one of the first people to successfully sell coffee in the 19th century. In the 1960s people became interested in the concept of specialty coffee and Starbucks was founded in 1971. Today, the coffee industry in the United States is worth around $45 billion!

The perfect cup of coffee depends on its body, acidity, aroma, and flavor. This is all determined by the bean, the roast, and the brew of the coffee.

Coffee, is actually the result of processing and roasting the seeds, also known as raw or green coffee, from a coffee cherry. There are two main types of coffee plants: robusta and arabica. Each coffee plant can live up to 100 years and produces on average 10 pounds of coffee cherries per year.

South America and Africa are amongst the largest producers of arabica coffee, with Brazil growing more than any other country. Vietnam and Indonesia are among the top producers for growing the robusta variety.

International Coffee Day is October 1st. Coffee lovers are in luck because just two days after National Coffee Day, they can celebrate International Coffee Day on October 1st.

National One-Hit Wonder Day is commemorated on September 25 of every year. The celebration of this day honors those artists whose debut songs were a massive hit. On this day we pay tribute to all those one-hit musical artists and their chart-topping song that we remember and liked but no other hit songs were forthcoming from them.

1955 is considered to be the beginning of the modern era of Rock and Roll, the music charts have seen scores of hits by so called one-hit wonders, a surprising number of which went all the way to number one. Here we will be looking at these songs and the artists behind them, who were unable to repeat the magic formula that got them all the way to the top of the charts.

Though there is some debate as to what constitutes a one-hit wonder the Cambridge English Dictionary defines it as "a performer of popular music who makes one successful recording but then no other". For this article we will be looking at those groups or artists who's one hit reached number one on the Billboard charts.
